

Neurodiversity 101:

There's no diagnosis called behaviour! Do-IT >

Children in some schools are excluded or removed from the classroom because of their behaviour.

Should we not be asking 'why' behaviour and 'where' behaviour and try to understand the reasons for it

Taking someone away from learning leaves further gaps in their understanding, makes them more stigmatised. Positive peer influences can help learning especially in teen years.

